Have It Your Way: Part 1

By Phil McIntosh

There has been a mentality seemingly crafted within us, perhaps unbeknownst to us, which manifests as a rallying cry of the modern American. This cry is a vociferous bellow that says, in essence, "I want what I want, when I want it, and how I want it." It is almost as if we feel entitled to such a feeling, as if we deserve such preferential treatment. The American obsession with individuality and personal autonomy has morphed into almost a cultic form of religion, marked by an absolute, dissoluble devotion to the freedom to make one's wishes dominate their current surroundings, allowing nothing to exist in their immediate consciousness or presence which they did not personally pick, place, or allow. God has delivered to mankind the ability and freedom to dictate personal direction in life; He has also warned us against chasing what we assume is important, especially at the expense of others around us or spiritual consequences (Jer. 10:23; Eccl. 7:29; Pro. 14:12). And yet, far too often, we still want what we want and think we know what's best. After all, we're free and intelligent beings, right?

One need not think too deeply about the spark that ignited the flame, for it could easily be stated that the "great dragon" (Rev. 12:9) who wants to deceive the world took advantage of our freedom to choose and slayed us. But, to what could we point as the tinder accelerating this fire of humanistic individualism? We could spread the blame around as far as the eye can see I suppose; from philosophy, the Renaissance, worldviews which became prominent during Rationalism, to perhaps even arrogance and elitism which rears its head as civilizations evolve intellectually and technologically. One recent impetus though that deserves at least some attention is popular culture. We hear about subliminal advertising but when does it actually work? More often than you'd assume. For a couple of examples, think about some American celebrities who thrust this idea into our consciousness (or sub consciousness): Frank Sinatra did it "my way" and Billy Joel said it was "my life" so stay out and leave me alone. Of all the modern examples (a relative term in light of how long ago Rationalism entered the world stage) which might invite us to think of how powerful and important we are as masters of our own universe, the old slogan from Burger King stands at the top of the heap. Oh, you probably know the first line, "Have it your way"; but did you know there was more to it than that? Read this full advertisement from Burger King, announced in 1974:

"Have it your way. You have the right to have what you want, exactly when you want it. Because on the menu of life, you are "Today's Special." And tomorrow's. And the day after that. And...well, you get the drift. Yes, that's right. We may be the King, but you my friend, are the almighty ruler."

Yes, I know it's just a burger advertisement. I realize it was a seemingly innocuous, effective marketing technique. And how was it effective- it is still recited and referred to even today, almost 40 years later. It's not that the freedom to make your burger how you want is in any way a negative; however, the mentality which undergirds the statement, the very idea that we are the "ruler" in our life can be such a potential danger. Such an attitude possesses the power to pervade our spiritual mentality, and has. What about the idea that you should "attend the church of your choice" and how pervasive that campaign has been? It has done precisely what the great deceiver intends for this world; it has created and advanced blindness. The apostle Paul as he wrote to the church of Corinth, said:

"But even if our gospel is veiled, it is veiled to those who are perishing, <sup>4</sup>whose minds the god of this age has blinded, who do not believe, lest the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine on them."2 Corinthians 4:3-4

If this mentality of humanistic individualism and self-determination is allowed to germinate and grow within the heart of man it will eventually produce rotten fruit which will only serve to create spiritual illness.

Scripture Reading

“Waiting for the Promise”
 Revelation 21:1-4

“<sup>1</sup>And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea. <sup>2</sup>And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. <sup>3</sup>And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. <sup>4</sup>And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.”
