The Theology of Potluck

by Wes McAdams

The word "potluck" means exactly what it seems to mean, a meal of chance. You reach into the "pot" to retrieve some food, not really knowing what you may find, because the dish was prepared by someone else. Personally, I think the best potlucks are church potlucks; table after table filled with casserole dishes, crockpots, and pie plates. Not only are potlucks incredibly enjoyable, they actually reflect good theology. Here are some lessons the church can learn from a potluck.

Potlucks Reflect the Mutual Generosity of the Church

We have probably all experienced a poor potluck. A poor potluck is one to which multiple families simply bring a 2-liter of Coke or a bag of chips (when they have the means to bring much more). At a poor potluck, the older ladies are typically wringing their hands and whispering to their husbands, "You may need to go to the store for more food."

Let's not focus on poor potlucks, but on ideal potlucks. An ideal potluck is one to which most families bring more than enough food to feed their entire family. These families show up not to be fed, but to feed others. When everyone shows up with selfless generosity no one goes away hungry, even those who can't afford to bring much food.

This is precisely the way the church should function; not just at a potluck meal, but day in and day out. Our attitude should be that of Jesus. Christians should "look not only to [our] own interests but also to the interests of others" (Philippians 2:4). We should desire "not to be served but to serve" (Mark 10:45). We should generously offer as much as we can possibly afford to share.

When the whole church lives this way, we experience the same phenomenon the early church experienced, "There was not a needy person among them" (Acts 4:34). The abundance of the wealthy supplies the needs of the poor, "that there might be fairness" (2 Corinthians 8:14) and no one goes away hungry.

Potlucks Reflect the Hospitable Nature of the Church

The Greek word that we translate "hospitality" (see Romans 12:13; Hebrews 13:2) is "philoxenia." It is a combination of the words, "phileō" (love) and "xenos" (stranger). Real hospitality is about taking care of strangers. Notice that "philoxenia" shares a root word with, "xenophobia," (fear of strangers). Hospitality is the exact opposite of xenophobia.

Good potlucks leave everyone feeling like family (even if they wandered in from the street). Each member prepares a dish, hoping it will be shared with a complete stranger. Strangers, of course, bring nothing to the table and don't even know they are going to be invited; but they leave as well-fed as anyone else. Every stranger should leave overwhelmed by the "hospitality" of the potluck table.

This generosity towards strangers should not be limited to potlucks, but should our practice every day. Followers of Jesus should be looking for opportunities to do good to people who cannot return the favor. Here is what Jesus says about this sort of hospitality:

"When you give a dinner or a banquet, do not invite your friends or your brothers or your relatives or rich neighbors, lest they also invite you in return and you be repaid. But when you give a feast, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind, and you will be blessed, because they cannot repay you. For you will be repaid at the resurrection of the just." (Luke 14:12-14)

Potlucks Reflect the Diverse Nature of the Church

Next to running out of food, one of the worst things that can happen at a potluck is that everyone brings exactly the same thing. It's not much of a meal when everyone brings fried chicken and no one brings side dishes. Good meals consist of a variety of foods.

Isn't wonderful when a potluck is multiethnic? Don't you love when families of different ethnicities bring dishes that reflect their unique background, culture, and heritage. Everyone present has the opportunity to expand their palate by trying foods they haven't tried before. You really get to know someone when you eat the food their mother used to make.

I have never met someone who thinks a potluck would be better if there was only one type of food. No one ever dumps all the food into one large pot and mixes it together before serving. And we do not look at the potluck table and say, "We're going to try to overlook all of the differences here today and focus on what this food has in common." No, we all understand that diversity is one of the greatest highlights of a potluck meal.

The same is true in every aspect of the church, diversity is one of the greatest highlights. Rather than being a "melting pot," the church should focus on being like a potluck. We should recognize and celebrate the ethnic diversity of the people Jesus has brought to his table, people "from every tribe and language and people and nation" (Revelation 5:9). The diversity of people at Jesus' table is a source of his glory and honor.

Conclusion

Let's strive to not only have potluck, but to be like a potluck. The church should be a gathering of diverse people, submitting all of their uniqueness to the "common good" (1 Corinthians 12:7). Everyone should have a burning desire to serve our brothers and sisters, but also a desire to serve the outsider and the stranger (Galatians 6:10). We should all make room for one another, just as Jesus made room for us (Romans 15:7).

I love you and God loves you,

Wes McAdams

OUR GUEST SPEAKER:

Jesse Stuart is 33 years old and a 2nd year student at the Southwest school of Bible studies in Austin, TX. He is married to Holley Stuart and they have three kids: Avery (8- years old), Tate (4 years old), Caleb (14 months old). Before going to preaching school, Jesse worked with Union Pacific Railroad as a welder. He was a deacon at the Natalia Church of Christ, in Natalia, TX. He would fill in preaching on occasions for the preacher in Natalia, and decided he wanted to grow his knowledge in the Scriptures to serve the Kingdom of God more.

SCRIPTURE READINGS

Sunday AM “How to be a Successful Fisher Man” Luke 5:8-11.

<sup>8</sup> When Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying,
Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord.

<sup>9</sup> For he was astonished, and all that were with him, at the draught of the fishes which they had taken:

<sup>10</sup> And so was also James, and John, the sons of Zebedee, which were partners with Simon. And Jesus said unto Simon, Fear not; from henceforth thou shalt catch men.

<sup>11</sup> And when they had brought their ships to land, they forsook all, and followed him.”

Sunday PM “It’s Time to Wake Up” Romans 13:11-14

<sup>11</sup> And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed.

<sup>12</sup> The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light.

<sup>13</sup> Let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying.

<sup>14</sup> But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof.”
